Concurrent Sessions 1

Weds 17th October 2.00 – 4.00 pm

Title of Session	Session Overview	Name of Facilitator(s)
Using the art of facilitation to create sustainable development across multi sectors	Story telling with picture boards: The presentation seeks to address the challenge of unguided and uncoordinated use of financial resources for perceived economic development	Regina Opoku (Ghana)
Reporting for Sustainable Development	In the event of gathering information and using it to enhance change in our society, we need to have facts that are reliable and verifiable. This session will take us into understanding and putting up quality reports that can be traced back and that are reliable for now and the future.	Mary Bada (Kenya)
Qualities of a Good Team	One of the shades of grey especially in a context of team work is inability to pin down the qualities that make a team player a good one. Often times we hear that x or y is not a good team player but neither the person nor the accuser can explain and explain it sensibly. Shedding light on the qualities helps to avoid the confusion and create clarity	Tilahun Tesfaye (Ethiopia)

Concurrent Sessions 2

Thursday 18th October 9.00 – 11.00 am

Title of Session	Session Overview	Name of Facilitator(s)
Team Building in Action	Do you want to grow your teams in an incredible way while sharing a convivial, emotional moment? This is time for innovators, visionaries and pioneers! Time of motivation of troops, to give them confidence in challenging, to create links between individuals, to reinforce the team spirit and solidarity, for a reciprocal knowledge, or for reward, and sometimes to launch a new project. Let's learn together about team building techniques & tools and improve our skills in team building session facilitation.	Materne Bossou (Togo)
Preparing for Participation	Participation is crucial to obtaining positive outcomes of any facilitation process. The role of a facilitator is simplified when the intended audience is actively taking part in the learning processes. Although shared learning is highly encouraged through participatory processes, and facilitation values individual knowledge and encourages participants to share useful information, creating an atmosphere where participants feel at ease in the beginning of the process has not been an easy task for many facilitators. This session is intended to allow participants to share and learn different ways of how a facilitator can successfully introduce him/herself to the group while preparing them for taking an active role in learning processes before getting to the crucial part of the content.	Churchill Shakim (Tanzania)
Professional Facilitators for Peace Building, Conflict Mediation or Negotiation	In the continent as of today, conflicts are arising every day everywhere. Regional Organizations are mobilizing every time their experts to mediate, facilitate or negotiate between actors in conflict. In the meantime, we have professional facilitators in the continent and abroad who have the expertise in facilitation, but who may not have the political flavour of situations. What is the link between facilitation and conflict transformation? What could facilitators do to support the regional Organizations to transform conflicts in the continent and create space for sustainable peace? How could we sharpen our members' capacity in conflict transformation to position them as Peace builders? These are some of the questions that the session will discuss. Participants will make proposals to our IAF African Leadership Team and the IAF Board of Directors for proactive actions within the next couple of years.	Kofi Kumodzi & Ida Fiadjoe (Togo)
